2,456	On arrival at the museum in 2008	 A large, green-painted vintage engine, likely a portable or stationary model, is shown. The engine has a prominent flywheel on the left side and a large, rectangular green housing on top. The word 'STER' is visible on the side of the engine, along with 'PATENT' and some numbers. The engine is mounted on a wooden frame. In the background, there is a wooden wall and a window with a sign that says 'WORKING ENGINE'.	 A small thumbnail image of the engine, showing a different angle or a close-up of a part.
