

Images

Objectid	4,130
Description
Image	 A large, green-painted diesel engine, likely a Petter model, is shown in a museum or workshop setting. The engine features a large, light-colored flywheel with a green center. The main body of the engine is green, with a large rectangular tank on top. The name 'Petter' is visible in yellow script on the lower part of the engine. The engine is mounted on a wooden base. In the background, there are other mechanical parts and a green shelf.
Thumb	 A small thumbnail image of the green Petter diesel engine, showing the same components as the main image but at a smaller scale.