Description	Shuttering ready for concrete in 2003
Image	 A large, rectangular wooden shuttering frame is constructed on a concrete floor in a workshop. The frame is made of light-colored wood and is supported by several vertical wooden posts. In the background, there is a large, dark, circular object, possibly a motor or a pump, and some other equipment. The walls are made of concrete and show signs of wear.
Thumb	 A small thumbnail image of the shuttering frame, showing the same structure as the main image but at a smaller scale.
