

| Objectid | Description  | Image                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Thumb                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|----------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 6        | Power Hall 1 |  A large, green industrial engine, likely a steam engine, is displayed in a museum hall. The engine is mounted on a white base and has a green railing in front of it. The hall has a concrete floor and white walls. In the background, another engine is visible, and a sign on the wall reads "POWER HA 1". |  A small thumbnail image of the same green industrial engine, showing a different angle or a close-up of a part of the engine. |